ESI S.p.A. (Energy System Integrator) is an Italian company active in the Renewable Energy market that operates as an EPC (Engineering, Procurement and Construction) and System Integrator, capable of presiding over the entire value chain and developing turnkey solutions for large and small-scale complex energy projects: from the study of the project to engineering, to the executive implementation of the plant, with an eye to its financial sustainability. ESI is active, as an EPC, in the photovoltaic, wind, off-grid, mini-grid (electricity supply in remote areas), and hybrid segments for the construction of photovoltaic plants and power plants (wind farms) of large size and power, which require increasingly sophisticated implementation technologies. As a System Integrator, ESI is able to make the different BESS (Battery, Energy, Storage and System) plants communicate with each other with the aim of creating a functional structure that fully exploits the potential of power plants, creating additional efficiencies for the entire energy system. ESI is also the leading Italian operator specialising in the "revamping" of large-scale traditional photovoltaic plants. The company operates in Italy and on international markets directly or through subsidiaries, serving public and private customers (foreign governments - investment funds and non-profit organisations - Renewable Energy Multinationals).
