Defence, Energy Security and Critical Infrastructure: Strengthening Europe's Industrial Resilience

As Europe responds to an increasingly complex geopolitical landscape, defence, energy security and the resilience of critical infrastructure have become central to the continent's long-term competitiveness and strategic autonomy. Governments and businesses are accelerating investments in strategic assets, strengthening industrial capabilities and modernising energy, maritime and digital infrastructure to enhance Europe's resilience.

Bringing together senior executives from leading European companies operating across defence, energy, utilities, digital infrastructure and strategic industries, this discussion will explore how corporates are adapting their investment strategies, allocating capital to support long-term growth, and navigating the evolving geopolitical and economic environment.
